However, if I put the keyword upper case ("current" instead of "current"), I don't get any results. What am I doing wrong? I'm using elasticsearch 5.1.2 Thank you! A: The problem is that if you have 'current' in the title it is not converted to a stop word. That's why you don't get any results. You can use a different stopword list or regex in your query which will convert the words. { "regex" : "(?i)(current)" } Kirk Cousins Is Sticking With Bears If you're a Bears fan, that's a good thing. It would appear, at least for the time being, that Kirk Cousins is staying right where he is. On Wednesday, reports surfaced that Cousins had accepted a deal with the Vikings. That was quickly dismissed. "They don't have that deal with anybody," Mark Daniels of the Chicago Tribune said on the NFL Network, according to Mike Florio of Pro Football Talk. Cousins wants to go to a team that has a chance to win a Super Bowl. The first team on that list, according to the Tribune, is the Bears. Chicago has the fifth-fewest points scored and the eighth-worst defense, with the fourth-worst scoring defense, according to Football Outsiders. Despite those numbers, and the fact that Cousins was a 10-3 lifetime starter with Washington before his dismal season in 2016, the Bears weren't going to keep him at quarterback. Florio said that the Bears won't be able to sign Cousins, because the team already has a quarterback signed. (It's usually wise to keep some kind of quarterback on the roster.) That would seem to suggest that the Bears aren't interested in trading for Cousins. In that case, if they were, the Bears would have to offer a starter in return, right? The Bears could look at Cousins if they trade for Nate Freese, the same way the Jaguars could look at him if they traded for Leonard Fournette. Freese was 10-13 for 104 yards with a touchdown and an interception last season for the Saints. In five years, Cousins is 37-42 for 543 yards and four touchdowns and five interceptions. The Vikings don't ba244e880a
