Keyboard Macro is a program that helps you automatically type common phrases by enabling you to define a list of phrases with the need to be inserted automatically, once you type the corresponding text. It does not require any prior knowledge about programming, and it only takes a few minutes to set it up. Just launch the program, load a keyword that you want to insert in the text you are going to type, and define a minimum number of characters it should take to complete the task. This way, you can set up phrases such as, “thank you,” “congratulations,” “please accept my congratulations,” “yes, please,” and many more. Other useful phrases you may need to add include, “it’s raining,” “I don’t like it,” and “a nice day.” You may also like to create phrases based on phrases, such as “tell me a joke,” “that’s how I like it,” or “what can I tell you?” Other important features worth mentioning include a few tools that will be particularly handy for those who like to type texts on a regular basis, such as a “smart list,” which will suggest phrases that you may want to insert. Other important configuration settings you can change include the type of the clipboard you want to use, as well as the keys on your keyboard that should be mapped to the “smart list,” and if you want to make use of the possibility to add a hotkey for enabling or disabling the process of keyboard monitoring. Once everything is set up, you will only have to press the hotkey that was assigned to the process of checking and automatically typing what you have entered, and the phrases that you added will be added to the text you type. You can even change the hotkey assigned to the process of monitoring text, and assign one of your own. All these options should make it easy for you to get started with this program, especially since it comes 1d6a3396d6
