IMVue Email Filters: 9 months ago 3 days ago Free App Directory There's a lot of apps that we've been wanting to add here on the App Store, but the word is — Apple isn't exactly big on allowing third party app developers to distribute apps to their own databases. Which is why a lot of the apps we see missing from the App Store we've seen for years, and now it seems Apple has finally started removing some of these apps. If you want an app but can't find it, try a third party database. We've handpicked the best apps available on the App Store, plus free games and more. Credit Card Advice If your credit card rewards program has a "spend a certain amount of money and get x amount of points, and then you can use those points to buy goods and services" reward system, you don't necessarily need to spend the money to get the reward. You can use points you have to buy things and then cancel the purchase when it's half done. February 2018 27.3.1 Re: Crediware EULA What a comprehensive course, very well put together. ANDERSON, ADAM (Government Contractor) Federal investigators have been looking at the phone lines of Rep. Tom DeLay for some months. He responded Friday that the phone company has been cooperating with the investigators, though he wouldn't confirm the nature of the probe. "I don't comment on specific investigations," he said in a brief telephone interview Friday. The Houston lawmaker's political action committee canceled a scheduled fundraising event in Washington because of the perceived risk that it could be disrupted by a hack into phone lines, an employee confirmed Friday. The employee said the caller-ID information for Tom DeLay would be made available to the fraud department of the telephone company should there be a disruption. DeLay is one of six Republicans seeking the Republican nomination for the U.S. Senate in Texas this year, although he has said he isn't abandoning his Houston congressional seat and would seek the state House if he isn't victorious. The telephone company is also monitoring the publicly available records of calls to DeLay's phone number, the employee said. In the past, DeLay has said in his periodic reports to the Federal Election Commission that he couldn't recall an instance in which his cell phone or office phone had been "tapped." SENATE STANDOFF The phone call to DeLay marks the latest of several incidents this year and last that have threatened to disrupt DeLay's campaign schedule. In March, an employee at a Tom DeLay phone bank was arrested for passing off fraudulent calls as legitimate. The employee, who has not been publicly identified, was charged with three felonies and had his name placed on the state's sex-offender registry. Two weeks later, the Federal Election Commission requested that DeLay and his fellow GOP Senate candidates release more detailed lists of the sources of funds they have raised in their campaigns. The Texas law that makes it illegal for candidates or their advisers to engage in any electoral activity while under a criminal indictment is
