Photoshop has been on the market since 1987 and is an influential program for photographers, designers and anyone that uses images in any of its many forms. It's used both to manipulate and make images, and to create new images. Many people Photoshop their images all the time, and they do it for the fun of it. Some people get paid to do this, but Photoshop is also a big part of the fashion industry. Photoshop is a massive program that goes beyond editing images. It comes with a host of features and tools that make it a very powerful tool. It's been around for as long as we've been making images, and it's still the dominant brand and the main reason people use it in the first place. Adobe's Photoshop is the industry standard imaging program, and it's used by millions of people every day. The Basics of Photoshop This program is used by millions of people every day. In fact, despite the fact that Photoshop is at its core a photo editing and manipulation program, it has so many other uses that you might not even realize they exist. For example, if you have a new family member, you can create a photobook of your photos in Photoshop. This program is used by millions of people every day. In this tutorial you will learn how to create a Facebook profile cover in Photoshop Elements. You will learn how to make a few adjustments to the web profile cover, such as: Change the background color Add an image (of the profile cover) Create a gradient Preview how it looks Create a Facebook profile cover 1. Create a new document (File>New) Create a new Photoshop file (File>New) Check your Photoshop settings and make sure it is set to the best resolution that you can for the canvas (preferably, 1920 x 1080 ) For this tutorial, you will need a blank file. This file will be the canvas you will use for your new profile cover. Use the Page Settings as a guide for the photo size and resolution. 2. Load an image In order to edit photos in Photoshop, you need to first load an image into your document. To load an image into a Photoshop document, select File > Open and navigate to the image you want to use. After the image is loaded into your document, right-click on the image and select: Use as is – displays the unaltered image. Show all layers – displays all the layers that are in the image. Show layer mask – displays the mask for the selected layer. Fade to black – displays the image with the blend mode replaced with the darken blend mode. Create a blank canvas for your design with Canvas size 575 x 315 3. Edit the photo In order to edit the profile cover, you need to apply any adjustments you would like to change the appearance of the image. Go to: Image> Adjustments> Blur Slide your filter to the right until you get a blurring effect that looks good. In the sample below, we used a 10-pixel Gaussian Blur filter. If you want to create more of a blurred effect, increase the filter radius. You can also use the Radial Blur filter by selecting it from the list on the left. Set the following effects for the blur filter. Gaussian Blur Radial Blur You can also alter the blur effect using the following settings. Amount – change the amount of blurring. Radius – change 05a79cecff

Homeland Security deports artist after six years in the US Homeland Security deports artist after six years in the US "We were really happy living here", says Homero Arteaga, a guerrilla artist who was born in Mexico and raised in Albuquerque, a city in New Mexico. He has been living in the US for six years and has lived happily for three years in an artists' quarter in Tijuana. His US citizenship automatically expires as a consequence of his having lived in the US for more than ten years and the fact that he is over 35 years old. Because they are illegal, the artist says, his work is prohibited from being exhibited. He's considered an "undocumented" artist and says that "Homeland Security officers entered our house and took all our possessions" in response to his performances. He says he has been warned that, as a consequence of his undocumented status, he is "at risk of being deported". "That's why we're leaving," says the artist, whose work has been published internationally. His situation is unprecedented. He has been named a "creative refugee", as is the case with Guillermo Gómez-Peña, a Cuban-American photographer who in 1999 fled the country after he was caught taking pictures in Havana. Both Arteaga and Gómez-Peña were born in countries that aren't covered under the DREAM Act, which would have granted them legal status as individuals who could apply to the US for residence and citizenship. Mexico is not included in the bill, because it is included in the Schengen Treaty and therefore doesn't grant residence and citizenship to anyone. Arteaga feels threatened at home. "I think the government is going to deport me," he says. "If not me, then another artist." What he fears most is "abandonment, loneliness" and "the fact that in Mexico, there's a kind of police state, so in this sense, what we have is almost as bad as being deported". Watch the video interview on Caramelo - an independent program that, with the collaboration of the Fundación Nuevo Balcón and the Artsco Foundation in the US, intends to bring Mexican culture to the US. Also includes the artist's footage from a performance in Washington, DC. Judas Priest Marked By Reaper Records For the first time in 13 years, Judas Priest will release a new album in Europe

Trump's remarks contrasted with the more subdued, on-the-ground mood at the Israel Museum, where Palestinians held a sit-in marking Nakba Day, which marks the creation of the State of Israel in 1948, and the launch of the modern state's building program to move its citizens into the country's first large-scale Jewish settlement at the time, in the contested city of Hebron. Trump's speech was more overtly pro-Israel, complete with commentary on the Palestinian issue and his condemnation of the anti-Israel Boycott, Divestment and Sanctions (BDS) campaign. He also referenced the "unprecedented" violence that has taken place there over the past three weeks. Hear Trump's full address: Trump began with acknowledging the Israeli people and all the work they have done to maintain a nation in "a constant state of siege," a phrase he repeated frequently throughout the speech. "America has stood with Israel in the midst of endless threats to its very survival," he said, noting that the U.S. is Israel's strongest ally in the world. "Israelis endure a unique challenge," he said. "Your home is not a safe haven; it is under threat." He added that Israel remains under constant threat, with militants from Hezbollah and other groups in the region.
